Become a school district leader.

Now offering the Neag School Executive Leadership Program at UConn Stamford.

For Connecticut educators aspiring to advance their careers and become a school district leader, the Executive Leadership Program (ELP) available through UConn’s Neag School of Education offers a one-year program designed to prepare experienced educational leaders to serve as superintendents of schools and/or in other district-level leadership positions.

Now available at UConn Stamford, ELP is readily accessible to educators in southern Connecticut.

Graduates of this program earn endorsement for the Connecticut (093) Superintendent Certification and possess the knowledge necessary for successfully meeting the challenges of district leadership in the 21st century.

Learn more at executive.education.uconn.edu.